Searches

Notice that in this Basic Search mode, you can select a specific archive as well as the years, number of documents, expansion, and type of query.

By selecting the Advanced Search tab at the top of the page, you can perform a more narrow and refined search. This function includes all the basic search options as well as additional search fields.

Let's Practice

1. Click the Advanced Search tab. In the search box type, "Oil spill". Include the quotation marks so you see only results containing the exact phrase.
2. Check the year 2001 and uncheck the years 2005 and 2004. Click  to begin your search.
3. Click the article titled Oil spill from ship collision with barge closes channel. Clicking on the title of the article will open the complete text.
4. Go back to the Advanced Search menu and do a new search. This time type in your subject as oil spill and coos bay with the year set only to 1999. Use the Query mode to set the Boolean search. Click .

Note: Advanced searches may be further limited by up to thirteen searchable fields. Using these limiters, you can exercise a lot of control over a specific search.
